

CONNOT RECOGNIZE UNWRITTEN LAW

Imposes Fine On H. L. Stader, Who Shot Dentist--Latter Was With Wife Of Cloverport Liveryman.

VICTIM ILL MANY WEEKS

"A Judge cannot recognize the unwritten law, though juries sometimes do," declared Judge Holdrick in Police Court Friday morning when he imposed a fine of $50 on H. L. Stader and placed him under $300 bond for three months. Stader, who is a Cloverport liveryman, was alleged to have shot and wounded Dr. J. R. Davis, a dentist, of Vine Grove, Ky., in front of 623 East Chestnut street at 2:30 o'clock the morning of September 13, 1911.

The evidence showed that Dr. Davis was shot while he was in company with Stader's wife. Davis was shot from the rear, the bullet entering the base of the skull. He lingered between life and death for weeks at the city hospital.

The case was called Friday for the fourth time. On each previous calling it was declared that the prosecuting witness could not be found. Dr. Davis said to Judge Holdrick that the Sheriff of Hardin county had made no effort to locate him; that he had been ill since the shooting and knew Friday was the day for the trial from the notice that appeared in the newspapers. Dr. Davis admitted having been with Stader's wife when he was shot.

Stader testified to having come to Louisville September 12 and went to the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. A. B. Muir, 623 East Chestnut street, where his wife was visiting. "They told me my wife had gone out, but they did not know where she had gone."

I decided to wait up for her. It was 2:30 o'clock in the morning when I saw her enter the front gate. A man was with her and I saw them stop at the gate. They came up to the front porch. She recognized me and made an outcry just as the man started to run. I lost my head and shot him as he ran out the front gate."

Gifts From Alaska.

Not a happier person in the county was there Christmas than Mrs. E. J. Bandy, who received several nice gifts from her son, S. T. Bandy, of Company G, 16th Infantry, Alaska, and also a pretty present from Capt. L. B. Simmond's wife, of the same Company.

Mrs. Waggoner Burned.

Mrs. Charlie Waggoner was badly burned on the face Thursday afternoon about one o'clock. She was fixing the fire in an air tight heater and the flames flew up in her face, burning her forehead severely and making her sick with fright.

The rest of the evening was spent in playing games and in the enjoyment of the musical selections by Mrs. Louis Jolly. The after dinner speeches which followed the luncheon were much enjoyed by all except those who were called upon to give them. Some of the subjects were: The New Year, Our Country, The Girls, Our Hostesses, Friends, Our Mothers.

The young people have determined to make this plan an annual one, so all householders are warned that if they show a light next New Year's, they will invite invasion. Miss Viola Lewis will be hostess next New Year's.

Big Tobacco Sale Made.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 6.—It was announced here that the Burley Tobacco society sold 800,000 pounds of the 1909 pooled crop of tobacco to independent buyers, said to have been former members of the American Tobacco company. The price, while not disclosed, is said to have been less than 16½ cents a pound.

AS SEPARATE COMPANIES

Former American Tobacco Subsidiaries Change Operating Methods.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 2.—Having been dissolved as one great corporation by order of the Supreme Court of the United States, the American Tobacco Company, the Pierre Lorillard Company, the Liggett & Myers Company and other former concerns in the American Tobacco Company, began operations in the Kentucky markets to day as separate and distinct companies. Each has a separate buyer and is operating entirely independent and in competition with the former members of the so-called tobacco trust.

It is believed that within the next month another tobacco deal will be arranged by which the remainder of all the pool holdings in the Burley Tobacco Society will be purchased by one or more of these companies. If this is done, the ten-year plan to control the entire Burley crop of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky will be started.

FIRE RAGES IN LOUISVILLE STORES

Four Hundred Thousand Dollars Estimated Loss--Gutman, Levi, Swartz And Baldwin Piano Company Are Heavy Losers.

FIREMEN SUFFER FROM COLD

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 5.—At 1 o'clock this morning Captain Stephens Obst fell four stories through the Gutman building, after slipping on the ice on the roof. He was dangerously hurt.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Four hundred thousand dollars is the estimated loss caused by a fire that to-night destroyed three ladies' apparel establishments, damaged the Baldwin piano store and slightly damaged the Courier-Journal building. All of the damaged buildings are situated in Fourth street, between Green and Walnut streets.

At 11:30 o'clock tonight the blaze was under control.

The fire started in the store of H. J. Gutman & Co., shortly before 9 o'clock, and soon destroyed the stock there and that of Abe Levi & Co., in the same building. It then swept to the four-story building of the Swartz Co., and then to the Baldwin store. The damage to the latter is mostly from water.

The Swartz Co. is the heaviest loser. The officers of the company place the loss at $200,000. The Courier-Journal's job printing plant was damaged and for a time it was believed the office proper would be destroyed.

In the theaters in the neighborhood the clanging of bells was heard and the talks from the stage prevented what is said was an approaching panic of serious proportions. Not a fireman was hurt, though they suffered from the intense cold.

THE GOLDEN GIRL READY FOR TRAVEL

Proud Advertisement For Cloverport Foundry and Cloverport--Mr. Will Pate's Dream Comes True--Boat a Beauty.

HULL RECEIVED O. K.

When the finishing touch was placed on the "Golden Girl", one of the prettiest excursion steamers that ever steamed the Ohio river was completed. The "Golden Girl" is a proud advertisement for Cloverport and the Cloverport Foundry & Machine Co., who built her for the Rounds Bros., of Owensboro, who will use her for an excursion boat out of Owensboro.

The "Golden Girl" is 92 feet long, 27 feet beam, and a depth of hull of four and one-half feet. She has one large boiler and her engines will develop 150 horse power. The lower deck is partitioned off into three rooms as follows: boiler room, bar room, or to be used as officers quarters, and an engine room. The upper deck contains a large roomy cabin 17x52 with wide guards and a large forecabin that will seat a large crowd. The cabin contains no state rooms and was built for a dance room and all of the interior is in the natural finish. The dance room floors are gems of beauty. Back of the cabin two nice toilet rooms have been made, large, roomy and airy. The pilot house is larger than usual, but owing to no state rooms it will be used for sleeping quarters for some of the crew. All of the stairways, from deck to cabin and to top of forecabin, are in hard wood finish. She is also equipped with swinging stage and will be lighted by electricity.

The Golden Girl has been Will Pate's dream. As manager of the Cloverport Foundry and Machine Co., who furnished all the material, he has closely watched the building of her, the laying of her hull, the finishing touches placed on her and has been assisted by a crew of good workmen. The hull inspector has received the hull and the boiler inspectors came down Saturday and inspected the boilers and after a trial trip will be turned over to the Rounds Bros., and will leave for that port where she will be furnished and fitted out for the excursion business.

Possibilities Of Electricity

From Henry T. Finck's "The Future of Cooking and Eating" in the January Century
For home use, electricity is still in most localities comparatively expensive, but it will be less so when it comes into more general use. If the electric companies would follow the example of the gas companies in renting cooking ranges, it would be a great stride forward. In England some of the companies charge a special low rate for electric cooking, because it is done mostly in the day time, when there is little demand for the current for lighting purposes. But the most radical way to reduce the cost will be to combine the electric range with the fireless cooker.

Thousands of families that could not pay for an electric current five or six hours a day could easily afford one for the fifteen minutes necessary for heating the food before it is put into the box, besides the few minutes needed for crisping roasts, browning coffee, or toasting bread. It is quite likely that the electric range can be so constructed in part that no separate cooking box will be needed; and then the culinary millennium!

FORMER RESIDENT

Of Breckenridge County Passes Away--Mrs. Richard Wathen Dies at Her Home at Bardstown Junction.

Mrs. Richard Wathen died at her home at Bardstown Junction, December 30, of a complication following several years' illness.

Mrs. Wathen, who was Miss Hettie Cunningham, was born in Elizabethtown in 1836, her father being Hundley Cunningham, a wealthy merchant of that place, and her mother, Sallie Wathen, a member of the well known Wathen family, of Breckenridge County. Mrs. Wathen was reared in Elizabethtown, educated in Fordsville, and in 1850 was married to Richard Wathen, a son of Dr. Ben Wathen, a prominent physician of Breckenridge county. The ceremony was performed by the late Arch-Bishop Ryan, of St. Louis, at the residence of Mrs. Wathen's uncle, Rev. John Cunningham.

Mr. and Mrs. Wathen made their home at the old Wathen homestead, Mt. Merino, for four years and then moved to Bardstown Junction, where they have lived for twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Wathen was a noted horsewoman in her youth and early married life and will be so remembered by the older residents of the county. She was admired for her brilliant intellect and conversational power and her high standard of character.

She leaves a husband, two daughters, Elizabeth and Eula, one son, Richard, Jr., an uncle, Rev. John Cunningham, of California, and two half-sisters, Mrs. W. A. Pusey and Mrs. Hundley McGowan, of Chicago. Mrs. Wathen was buried at Elizabethtown.

Col. L. W. Gaines, of the "Trenton Progress," is receiving many congratulations on his appointment by Governor McCreary as a member of his staff.

Down To Trenton Rock

On Wednesday night the Snowdrill rig, four miles back of town, reached a depth of 2,000 feet. The last 1,500 feet the drill passed through solid limestone, but on Wednesday evening it left this and entered a dark shale, known as Trenton rock, indicating, experts say, oil ahead. Following instructions, work was suspended to report, and it is believed work will begin again at once. Enthusiasm over the prospects are high, and we will report next week.—Hawesville Clarion.

Reasons For Disarming Natives In Sulu Island

United States Has Been Trying to Solve Problem For Twelve Years.

Fanatic Juramentado Cuts Down All Christians He Can Reach.

MORO outlaws will no longer be able to defy the United States government and Moro raids will no longer offer hope of battle to the peace worn soldiers in Luzon, for orders have gone out that all the Moros in Mindanao and Jolo—better known as Sulu—be disarmed.

The expedition which Major General John J. Pershing, commanding the department of Mindanao, sent to carry out this order, did not find the Moros meekly ready to lay down their arms. A number of the outlaws died fighting. Some 600 others made a last stand on the peak of Bud Dajo, an extinct volcano in the center of the island of Jolo, where they were starved out and forced to surrender.

What can a Christian nation do when it comes up against a race which believes that it can attain the seventh heaven by killing Christians? Other nations have had to deal with this problem before, but the United States met it first when it came face to face in the southern islands of the Philippines with the Mohammedan Moros. For twelve years the United States has tried to answer that question, and for twelve years the short hand notes of that answer have been a list of murders, balanced by a log of punitive expeditions.

Lieutenant Walter H. Rodney, Second United States cavalry, was murdered in the quarters at Jolo eight months ago.

This is the latest of the crimes charged to a juramentado, a Mohammedan who has taken an oath to shed the blood of Christians. In this case the fanatic, dashing down the street, slashing right and left with his bolo, happened to meet Rodney and struck him down before he had a chance to defend himself.

Ever since the United States set out to keep the peace in Jolo it has used every means to prevent these attacks; but, in spite of the utmost precautions, a murder such as that of Rodney is a periodical occurrence. It is apparently as hard to guard American citizens against reckless Moros as it is to protect American presidents against reckless anarchists.

A juramentado is anything but a pleasant individual to encounter. For utter disregard of his own life he is fit to rank with the most devoted of the companions of that prophet to whom he also has sworn allegiance, for the Moro is a Mohammedan and firmly believes in the glory of a bloody death. If he is so fortunate as to take the life of a Christian or two before he dies his chances of making good in heaven are immeasurably increased.

Searching a Moro.

In the time of the Spanish occupation of Jolo most careful precautions were taken against juramentados. By the side of the path that led from the country to the gate a little white slab marked the deadline. In a small building about fifty yards from the gate a guard of four privates under a sergeant kept their guns loaded and their bayonets fixed.

As soon as the guard saw a Moro approaching along this path they would shout, "Moro armado!" and that would bring the rest of the soldiers out from the gate at a double quick with rifles leveled. Supported thus from the rear, the outside guard advanced to search the intruder. Even then they were not willing to trust him. The privates stepped off ten paces and covered him with their guns also, while the sergeant advanced and relieved him of his arms. These were not returned to him until he left the town.

When the juramentado cannot get through the military lines by reckless fury he will often resort to subterfuge, even though it takes weeks of preparation for its successful accomplishment.

Called at Breakfast Time.

In 1884 a Mohammedan was found on the desert island of Panay and was promptly locked up as a suspicious character. Later he was taken into the service of the Spanish governor. Don Manuel Castellon, who had among his collections a line of native arms. One morning the Moro came bounding into the dining room brandishing a kris in one hand and a lance in the other, and danced around the table. The governor, who had some of his fellows to breakfast, was much amused. But the Moro did not last long, for the fellow, who was evidently juramentado, hurled the lance at the prosecutor. The spear struck official's watch chain in the door and lodged harmlessly in the table. Both men at once with the would be assassin, the governor's wife had presence and pluck enough to pick up the table knives and plunge it into the body above the shoulder. The man fell to the floor dead, but he evidently had been missing his chance for the seventh heaven. This thought gave him strength to jump up, rush around the room and wound two of the servants before he was finally dispatched by the bayonets of the guard.

Under American rule Jolo has maintained its reputation for lawlessness and its Moro inhabitants their reputation for daredevil bravery. The sultan himself and his dattos, who foresaw the end of their rule, did everything they could to obstruct the endeavors of the Americans toward law and order.

Ran Amuck at Wedding Feast.

A few years ago when Lieutenant Colonel Edward W. Griffith was busy at Iligan building up a corps of Moro constabulary a juramentado was overcome before he could do any damage. A daito was being married, and the Americans had been invited to the wedding feast. Suddenly, in the middle of the feast, a Moro ran amuck, rushed at the assembled people and slashed right and left with his keen edged bolo. Everybody fled excepting Colonel Griffith and Captain Wood. The latter officer quickly drew his revolver, but Colonel Griffith was unarmed. Taking careful aim at the onrushing savage, Captain Wood fired, and the colonel, springing forward, with his bare fist dealt the murderer a knockout blow.

Only last spring in the Asturias barracks a short distance from Jolo a Moro who was being searched in the old way jumped for the man that was searching him and was promptly shot down by another of the guard.

Outside of the army few Americans know much about Jolo. They think of the island as a sort of a mythical place with a sultan in it somewhere out in the Pacific near the Philippines. As far as it goes that idea is correct. Jolo is the main island in the Sulu archipelago, a chain of islands stretching between Mindanao and the coast of British North Borneo.

The sultan of Sulu has been shorn of almost all his power now and is practically nothing more than a pensioner of the American government.

Jolo is a neat, well kept little town, with an odd distinctive atmosphere all its own. The streets are laid out with mathematical precision. On the sea front are the officers' quarters and the clubhouse, with a little square in front, where the band plays in the evening to inspire the officers in the post dances. On the other side of the town are the red roofs of the barracks.

Old Gate at Jolo.

Across Jolo from the sea front stands the old gate, the opening scene in the "Sultan of Sulu." This controls all approach from the country and is always well guarded. The sentries here must protect the town from dangerous characters, for it is through this gate that fanatics who have sworn death vows in the country must pass before they can light their religious passion on a Christian's blood. There are always two sentries at this gate. One covers every Moro who comes in with his gun, while the other searches him. The sultan, like all his subjects, was entirely reckless of human life. Inhuman cruelty, in fact, was one of the chief characteristics of old Sultan Ibrahim, "his excellency Paduca Majasari Mahamud Amirul Ma'mun Sultan—Hajji Narrasid," to give him his full title. There is a story, and it is vouched for by one of the most eminent historians of the island, that he used to cut down slaves to try the edges of his new weapons.

On the memory of many Americans who have perhaps never heard of Jolo the name of Jikiri is indelibly impressed. Never did godfather choose a more appropriate name, for the very sound of it makes the reader think of brigands. The story is that he and three other Moros swore eternal enmity to American rule and vowed in the Moro fashion that they would kill 300 of the United foreigners before they died. The deaths of scores of American soldiers and civilians attested to the thoroughness with which they fulfilled that vow. They finally met death in the crater of an extinct volcano on a sand reef off the southern coast of Jolo.

The end came on the morning of the Fourth of July. Up till that time the Moros, being so well covered, suffered practically no damage, but succeeded in killing three men and wounding a dozen others. By the morning of the Fourth their ammunition had almost given out. Clearing the path by one last volley, they dropped their rifles, seized their terrible barongs and kris and, rushing down the side of the crater in a cloud of dust, threw themselves on the troops like a pack of ferocious. Jikiri himself spring at Lieutenant Wilson, seized him by the hair and struck a deadly blow at his neck with a kris. Wilson would have been decapitated had not Lieutenant Baer just in the nick of time shot Jikiri in the head and killed him. So died the last of the Moro outlaw chiefs.

The construction of the Northern Transandine railway will be begun about the middle of 1912, the operations commencing simultaneously at both sides of the Andes, through San Francisco pass. The line will connect Copiapo with Tinogasta.

Guard the Family Health

Health is often endangered by unsanitary cooking utensils. Physicians have found that cancer is caused by enamel ware chipping off and irritating the stomach.

If you have children or invalids in the family beware of cheap cooking utensils that crack, scale, peel off, tarnish or rust. Disease germs lurk in the worn places and there is further danger of tainting the food. Health is too precious to take risks with it.

Be safe. Use

FARM JOURNAL ("cream, not skim-milk") is 34 years old, and has over 750,000 subscribers, more than any other farm paper published. Its four million readers (known as "Our Folks") are the most intelligent and prosperous country people in the world, and are always saying FARM JOURNAL helped to make them so. It is clean, brief, "boiled down," full of practical wisdom, gumption, fun and sunshine. It believes in order, thrift, kindness, comfort, and happiness, and it has old Peter Tumbledown always ready to show how NOT to run a farm.

"Our Folks" have comfortable homes, modern buildings and machinery, tight roofs and fences, gates that swing free, sound horses, well-dressed and happy wives and children, and money in bank. Their potatoes are the largest, their milk tests the highest, their hogs weigh most, their fruit brings the best prices. Live farmers everywhere find this out, and they want the FARM JOURNAL.

Subscribe now, and get with the paper any of these famous

Money-making Secrets.

These great illustrated booklets are all stories of success in farming, and they tell you the METHODS that won it.

Poultry Secrets is a unique collection of the secret methods and discoveries of successful poultrymen. It gives Fitch's famous mating chart suppressed for years, the Curtis method of securing 50 per cent. more pullets than cockerels, Boyer's method of insuring fertility, with priceless secrets of mating, breeding, feed and feeding, how to produce winter eggs, and many others of great value long jealously guarded, now first published.

Horse Secrets exposes the methods of "bishops," "plugging," cocaine and gasoline doping, and other tricks of "eyes" and swindlers. It enables any one to tell an unsound horse. It also gives many valuable feeding, training, breeding and veterinary secrets.

Corn Secrets is the great NEW hand-book of Prof. Holden, bushels more per acre of corn that is rich in protein and other valuable stock feeding elements. Wonderful photographic pictures make every process plain.

The MILLION EGG-FARM tells how J. M. Foster, in the New Jersey pine-belt, makes over $18,000 a year, mainly from eggs. If you keep chickens, read about the "Rancocosa Unit" and learn how Foster FEEDS his hens.

THE "BUTTER BOOK" tells of seven cows that produced half a ton of butter each per year (140 pounds is the average). An eye-opener for dairymen. Get it, weed out your poor cows, and turn your good ones into record-breakers.

GARDEN GOLD shows how to make your back-yard supply you with fresh vegetables and fruit, how to cut down your grocery bill, and get cash for your surplus produce. It tells when and how to plant, cultivate, harvest and market every kind.

DUCK DOLLARS tells of the great Weber duck-farm near Houston. Every year they sell over 40,000 ducklings at a net profit of 50 cents each. Tells why ducks pay them better than chickens, and just HOW they do everything.

Any one of these splendid booklets, both for $1.00 with Farm Journal FOUR full years.

(And if you subscribe NOW, before they are all gone, and tell us where you saw this offer, we will send you also Poor Richard's Almanac, Franklin's great almanac brought down to 1912, packed with wit and wisdom for the farmer.)

Speaker of House Plays No Favorites.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

In Organizing the House For the Business of the Session, Speaker Terrell Displayed a Degree of Impartiality That Has Given Even Those Who Opposed Him Most Opportunity For Praise.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9.—"To the victor belong the spoils" is a saying in politics that usually is lived up to, but in the appointment of the standing committees of the house this session, Claude Terrell, the speaker, did not follow the precept. With the speakership in his control and the power to name the committees resting with him and his friends, Mr. Terrell showed the right spirit and gave good appointments to the followers of his opponent, Harry Schoberth, of Woodford county. Mr. Terrell went even further than that and gave good places to the few Republicans in the house who are on the other side of the political fence from Mr. Terrell. The appointments were not announced until Tuesday, although it had been expected that they would go to the house on Monday.

The Rules committee, that all-powerful body, which is in charge of the business of the house during the last days of the session, was announced on Tuesday and this committee went over the list of the other committees, making few changes. The Rules committee is the most sought-for place in the house, next to the speakership. In the house in the last few days of the session there is always a rush on the part of members to get their bills up for passage. The legislators usually daily along for six or eight weeks and then crowd into the last few days of the actual work of the session. To give some semblance of order and to get the work out, it has been the custom to permit of no measure being reported from the committee, from the calendar or orders of the day, unless called up by the Rules committee. This will be the program again this year.

Tuesday was bill day in the house, and more than two hundred measures, providing for everything under the sun were offered by the members. The senate has no bill day, every day being bill day, but no bills were offered during the first week of the present session. The sessions were mostly devoted to the routine of organization and adjournment was taken on Wednesday until Tuesday, each house waiting for the appointment of the committees, but the house members had their chance on Tuesday, and they took prompt advantage of it to pour into the hopper bills for many things. Every plank in the Democratic platform will be carried out if the bills introduced all pass, for a bill was offered carrying into effect every plank in that platform. As there was little difference between the Republican and Democratic planks the minority, the Republicans, will offer much the same bills as the Democrats.

Both parties are pledged to prison reform, and the leaders of the Republican minority have said that they will back up the Democrats in the proposal to take the prisons out of politics. Just how they are to be taken out of politics is what is causing the talk. The present prison commissioners say that they are not opposed to taking the prisons out of politics, but they do not think it would be carrying out the Democratic platform to transfer the patronage of the prisons from the men who now control it to the opposing faction in the Democratic party. They say that they are willing to do what they can to carry out the Democratic platform, but they differ with the other side as to the methods that are to be employed.

One side wants the prisons placed under the control of the governor, giving the governor power to appoint prison commissioners, instead of having them elected by the legislature as at present. Eli Brown, chairman of the prison commission, says this would be turning the patronage, which is taken away from his board, over to the other side. The commissioners say that they would be willing to have the people elect the commissioners as the railroad commissioners are elected, by districts. It is regarded as probable that the friends of the prison commissioners will try to get through a bill making the office of prison commissioner elective by direct vote of the people. The state would be divided into three districts, probably so arranged that no Republican could be elected and an election had every four years to choose each commissioner.

In the fight over the speakership, it was charged that Mr. Schoberth, of Woodford county, was the candidate of the prison commission, and that he was representing them. It was also charged that the "lobbyists" were behind Mr. Schoberth. This was dealt with vigor by Mr. Schoberth and his friends who asserted that he and his friends were pledged to carry out the planks in the Democratic platform. Mr. Schoberth went down in defeat with spunk, and showed that he can be a good loser by the smiling way he took defeat. The soreness resulting from the race has about vanished, and everything is now peaceful.

Of course, there was more or less wild talk following the speakership race and it was said that the grand jury would make an investigation, but it is believed that the matter will be dropped as there seems to be nothing authentic in any of the rumors that were circulated about the capitol on the day after the Democratic caucus.

That they will get through their bill granting school suffrage to women in this state is the confident belief of the leaders of the State Federation of Women's Clubs of Kentucky. The board held a meeting here Thursday, and while here they said they were so confident of getting the bill passed that they had ceased to talk about it. Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Smith, who is president of the State Federation, says she has been told by the leaders of both sides in the present legislature, that the school suffrage bill will certainly become a law.

When the women have secured school suffrage, they will come back to the legislature and ask for full suffrage. Mrs. Smith is a suffragist full-fledged, although the State Federation has not gone that far and she says it is only a question of a short time until the women will have the ballot, with an educational qualification, in Kentucky. The women thus far have contented themselves with asking for limited suffrage.

Two years ago when the women appeared before a senate committee asking for school suffrage, Senator Hogg told them that if they would come back to Frankfort in 1912, each with a baby, time being granted to all to marry, if they were unmarried, he would vote for the bill. This challenge is to be answered, and it is stated that the women will come to Frankfort bringing their babies with them to help plead for school suffrage. The women have turned their challenge into a weapon, and will use the children as exhibits, claiming the right to have something to say about who

Pale Faces

Pale-faced, weak, and shaky women—who suffer every day with womanly weakness—need the help of a gentle tonic, with a building action on the womanly system. If you are weak—you need Cardui, the woman's tonic, because Cardui will act directly on the cause of your trouble. Cardui has a record of more than 50 years of success. It must be good.

Mrs. Effie Graham, of Willard, Ky., says: "I was so weak I could hardly go. I suffered, nearly every month, for 3 years. When I began to take Cardui, my back hurt awfully. I only weighed 99 pounds. Not long after, I weighed 115. Now, I do all my work, and am in good health." Begin taking Cardui, today.

shall educate them in the public schools. Of course most of the unmarried women who were here last session have not married since, but they will borrow children and members of the Federation who have children, (the president, by the way has two) will storm the senate committee.

Only the preliminary work of the present session has been done and but little has been accomplished toward legislation. Those who are leading the fight for certain bills say that the work will be done early and not jammed into the closing days. Gov. McCreary is taking active part in the business of the present session. He has already let the legislators know that he does not propose to sit back and look on, but will be in the thick of the fighting, trying to carry through the recommendations that he made in his message. The message was a lengthy one and covered many subjects, so many in fact that few of the members have succeeded in grasping all that the governor touched upon in his recommendations. When the governor let it be known that he wanted Mr. Terrell elected speaker of the house and made a determined fight to land him in the chair, the members knew that the governor was not simply a lay figure, but a lively individual, despite his years. The governor has told the legislature what he wants it to do, and he proposes to see to it that they do as they are told, if he can.

In his message, Gov. Willson omitted all reference to the need of a new governor's mansion. The governor knows about the mansion, for he lived there thirty-six years ago. He said the other day that when he lived in the mansion in 1876 it had to be propped up with boards in the cellar to keep it from falling down, so the condition of the mansion at the present time may be imagined. When Mrs. Willson, wife of the former governor, was in the mansion she did wonders with it, and her taste enabled her to make it appear attractive. The defects were covered up, and the casual visitor would not have noticed that the old building was in need of repair. Kentucky's first governor lived in that old mansion. He did not live there as the first governor, the mansion not having been built until after he went out, but Isaac Shelby was elected governor twice, and during his second term as governor, four years after he went out of office the first time, he lived in the present mansion.

The new mansion is the pet of Gov. Ed McDermott. He says Gov. McCreary feels a hesitancy about asking for a new mansion in which he is to live, so Gov. McDermott is doing all the talking about a new mansion. He has referred to this in several addresses at which he has made recently, notably the address he delivered in taking his seat as president of the senate. He says Kentucky, which is practically out of debt, with a two million dollar building for a capitol, should have a mansion for the governor, that would be in keeping with the reputation of the state.

Peter Lee Atherton, probably the one millionaire who has ever been in the Kentucky legislature, certainly the only one in recent years, is keeping house, by his lonesome, in one of the finest homes in Frankfort, which he rented furnished for the session. Mr. Atherton came to the legislature to look after good roads and school improvement which are his hobbies, but he wanted home life as well. He said he could not stand a hotel for three months, so he scouted about and found the kind of a house he wanted. He brought up from Louisville a good cook and some servants, and now is living like he lives at home.

HOW OLD IS YOUR BABY?

If she is two years old and you save two dollars a week for him, he will have more than A THOUSAND DOLLARS when he is just ten years of age. Think of it! Your little girl needs a bank account all her own. She is entitled to it, at least, 50c a week which means a neat sum when she will have finished High School. Bank accounts for the children show forethought of the parents. Teach your child to save as well as to earn. Saving money is the hardest lesson to learn and is easier to master in early childhood.

NO MORE "JUNK!"

Orville L. Pace, representing the International Harvester Co., and block-man for the I. H. C., in Kentucky, started out on his new year's work last week. Mr. Pace said that last year the company employed thirty-five new men, and only five of them made good. One of his hardest parts is employing dependable men and says it is almost impossible to find men who will stick to their road long enough to make themselves valuable to the company. Another part of his work is to get names for the Harvester's Company advertising bureau. He tries his best to get the right names and addresses so the advertising matter will be sure to reach them. "As much pains as we take to get addresses accurate, one-half of the advertising material we send out comes back to our office," he said. The International Harvester Company has its own system of advertising—a system of sending out circulars, souvenirs and other novelties, expecting them to reach the trade, but they never do. More than one-half of the "junk" lies in the post-office uncalled for or on the desks or counters of their agents. Saturday an I. H. C. advertising man was on the train giving away little pearl handle knives as ads for the company. He said they were going to abolish this way of advertising and use the newspapers.

To learn that newspaper advertising is the best, has cost the International Harvester Company thousands of dollars. We are glad they are contemplating to advertise through the newspapers, and hope they will do it. This is an age of advertising and the newspaper is the most reliable medium known.

SEND US YOUR CHOICE

Whom do you Breckenridge county Democrats want for President of the United States? Here are the Democratic Presidential possibilities for 1912: Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey; Judson Harmon, Governor of Ohio; Champ Clark, Democratic Speaker of the Federal House of Representatives, and Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader in the Lower House of Congress.

We want every Democrat in the county to send us your choice. Just write us a postal card and let us know your man.

We are pleased to acknowledge receipt of the Western Kentucky State Normal School bulletin. It shows what excellent work the Normal is doing, not only for itself, but for the masses, the student teachers, and for the state of Kentucky. The bulletin contains illustrations of the Normal and of schools taught by its graduates and their pictures. Its personal reports from every county where its trained teachers have charge, give proof of the influence of the Normal. President, H. H. Cherry, writes: "We have done everything in our power to give the State a service that will win the confidence of the people." We know from his efforts that his whole heart is in the State Normal School of the Western District and what he has accomplished in building up the institution tells where his treasure is.

John Phelon & Company, tobacco buyers of this city, have bought 2,000,000 pounds of tobacco, the largest purchase ever made in the history of the town. This means the distribution of nearly $200,000 in cold cash in this community. The merchants of this town ought to get busy and go after some of this good money. Advertising in the News will get it. Our merchants will have to wake up to the importance of advertising. The day has passed when a merchant can sit back and wait for trade to come to him. He must let the people know what he has to sell and how he sells it. Publicity is a great business puller.

Next March will be a busy month in Chicago. Manufacturers representing the billion dollar clay working industry are to assemble in Chicago and a municipal congress is to meet there at the same time. One of the most important conventions at that time will be the National Brick Manufacturers Association. All kinds of brick, clay, gas retorts, pottery, sanitary ware, mosaics, and electrical insulators, will be exhibited. Mr. Louie Ditzgenbach, who is in the office of Mr. Bowne, manager of the Murray Roofing Tile Plant, of this city, expects to attend the assemble and exposition of these large tile and brick organizations.

Our columns this week are filled with all the news and personal items from the county. Letters from Glen Dean, Harned, Ammons, Lodiburg, Stephensport, Hardinsburg, Irvington and the latest happenings of the State and Nation, crowd the paper. Besides all this, are pictures of real life; our advertisements are excellent show-windows for our merchants and business men. Read them thoroughly and see if you have not gotten more than three cents worth of information and pleasure. The Breckenridge News is a dollar the year. Are you paying for it or going in debt to your neighbor every week?

Democrats in this county are nearly solid for Woodrow Wilson for the Democratic nomination for President. There has been no effort on the part of anyone to work up an interest in his candidacy. It seems to be a general uprising for the man and his principles.

Woodrow Wilson says that we all know what we want, but we do not know how to get it. Only one way and that is to keep on wanting what we want. Many men give up wanting as well as trying to get what they want.

The home newspaper is a stock company in which every citizen in the town and county should take stock. Invest a dollar yearly and see what your dividend will be. Do not expect to get any benefit from the paper when you are not a stock-holder.

"Fellow Democrats we must stand together"—was the key note of Gov. Wilson's speech at the Jackson banquet. We need Bryan and all true Democrats and a good big bunch of Republicans to win in November.

Railroad trains can't get over tracks covered with snow, sleet and ice any more than a wagon train. Give the trainmen a show and a kind word. They always do their best to make time.

B. F. Hardin, our correspondent at Lodiburg, said the thermometer dropped to 28 degrees below zero there. It wasn't near that cold here—even at church.

Governor McCreary is living up to his promises. Aren't you proud of the old man? We are, and every man in Kentucky will be before he goes out of office.

One thousand Democrats from all parts of the country held a love feast at Washington Monday. They predicted success for the party next November.

Read our Frankfort letter. It tells you what the salons are doing in the Legislature. This will be a weekly feature during the session.

LITTLE STORIES WRITTEN

While The Press Thunders

BY LOUISE

Saturday was the first touch of real winter that Cloverport has felt and Sunday morning a blanket of beautiful snow covered the whole town and the hills and the valleys in the distance. "It used to be that everyone wore arctic over-shoes, leggings and wrapped up in veils and shawls on a day like this," said Mrs. A. R. Fisher on her way home from church Sunday morning, "but now, we just wear sandals."

Truly the day of "bundling up" has passed and people seem to be as comfortable. In fact, doctors say that first around the neck cause throat trouble, and one rarely ever sees a man now-a-days wearing a muffler.

"I have cleaned all my vases, ornaments and pictures, wrapped them up and put them away. All I have out on my dresser is absolutely what I need," said a house-keeper Wednesday. "I have enough to do to watch my two babies and keep them clean." The mother lives the simple life and she is one of the brightest, happiest young women in town.

"We have only three girls in our town who are really on the carpet and eleven bachelors," said an attorney of the county sent Friday. "These girls have so much attention by the younger set that they do not know we are in existence. If I knew that I were to meet a pretty, attractive girl who would condescend to look at me every day, I would get up early every morning, make a fire in my room and spend sometime trying to look better than the best old batch in town."

A traveler said to the discouraged lawyer: "Cheer up! This is leap year. Take a trip. Go to some kind of a convention, don't sit around and go to waste. All you need is a good push."

o o o

"Here is one dollar for my League dues," said a Leaguer last week. "It is some of my Christmas money, I hate to give it up, but I want to start the New Year right." Out of debt and into the New Year is a glorious feeling, not to owe your merchant, your church or the Aid Society a penny is the best way to celebrate the beginning of 1912. It means so much to treasurers of church societies and lodges for members to be prompt in paying their dues—and it means so little to the members to pay every month. To pay one's own part without being reminded or urged shows an interest that never lags. Mrs. Bob Pierce says she likes to collect Aid Society dues and has lots of fun helping the women to find their pocket-books. But she is one woman out of a hundred who gets merriment out of hard tasks.

Thoughtlessness.

They say the world is round, and yet I often think it square, So many little hurts we get From corners here and there. But one sad truth in life I've found, While journeying East and West, The only folk we really wound Are those we love the best. We flatter those we scarcely know, We please the fleeting guest, And deal full many a thoughtless blow To those who love us best.

ming of very fine Irish lace insertion. Below this, again, come other tucks, crossed by a drapery of pale blue satin ribbon. Insertions of Irish lace to match pass over the shoulders, forming long stole ends, while the lower part of the skirt is also very finely tucked and trimmed with lace.

When Gowns Are Tailored.

On some tailored suits there are revers and collars in white or gay colors.

Skirts at present are little plaited, though if there is any plaiting on the skirt it is better to have it stitched all the way to the bottom.

Black and blue are perhaps the best colors for the practical everyday tailored suit, though almost any color should prove satisfactory since the art of dyeing is so good nowadays.

A Famous Walking Match.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich was one of the characters made notable in a celebrated walking match which was got up by Dickens during his second visit to America. The match was a stretch of about six miles over the Boston milldam toward Newton Center. In the articles of agreement the signatures were stated to be:

The Boston Bantam.....J. R. Osgood
Massachusetts Jemmy.....James T. Fields
The Gadshill Gasper.....Charles Dickens

At the dinner given by the contestants at the Parker House, in Boston, after the fatigues of the match were over there were present besides the above:

Hyperion.....H. W. Longfellow
Hosea Biglow.....J. R. Lowell
The Autocrat.....O. W. Holmes
The Bad Boy.....T. B. Aldrich

Remembered the Accent.

"Queen Mary," said the teacher to the class in the history lesson, "loved France so much that she declared 'Cahis' would be found written across her heart after she was dead."

Pausing a moment, the teacher looked at a boy steadily.

"Jimmy Smith," she said, "you were not listening."

"Oh, yes, I was," Jimmy replied.

"Well, what did Queen Mary say would be found written across her heart?"

"Kelly," was little Jimmy's triumphant reply. Exchange

CHAPTER XV.

NEWS OF JOAN.

A WEEK after the Upolu's departure the Malakula dropped anchor, and her skipper came ashore for a game of billiards and to shock Sheldon with the little surprise born of information he was bringing with him.

Captain Amekland played the billiards first, and it was not until he was comfortably seated in a steamer chair, his second whisky securely in his hand, that he let off his bomb.

"A great piece that Miss Lackland of yours," he chuckled. "Claims to be a part owner of Beranda. Says she's your partner. Is that straight?"

Sheldon nodded coldly.

"You don't say? That is a surprise. Well, she hasn't convinced Guntur or Tuhag of it. They're pretty used to irregular things over there, but—ha! ha!"

"There is nothing irregular about it. It is an ordinary business transaction." Sheldon strove to act as though such transactions were quite the commonplace thing on plantations in the Solomons. "She invested something like $1,500 in Beranda."

"So she said."

"And she has gone to Sydney on business for the plantation."

"Oh, no, she hasn't."

"But didn't the Upolu sail?"

"The Upolu sailed all right." Captain Amekland slipped his whisky with provoking slowness, "only Miss Lackland wasn't a passenger."

"Then where is she?"

"At Guntur last I saw of her. She was going to Sydney to buy a schooner, wasn't she?"

"Yes, yes."

"That's what she said. Well, she's bought one, though I wouldn't give her 10 shillings for it if a nor'wester blows up, and it's about time we had one."

"What schooner? Where is it? How did she happen to buy it?"

"First, the schooner 'Martha'." the skipper answered, checking his replies off on his fingers; "second, the Martha is on the outside reef at Poonga-Poonga, loaded clean of everything portable and ready to go to pieces with the first bit of lively sea, and, third, Miss Lackland bought her at auction."

She was knocked down to her for 55 quid by the third assistant resident commissioner I ought to know. I bid 50 myself for Morgan and Raff. My word, weren't they hot!"

"Twenty," says I for my bid. Twenty-five," says the little girl. 'Thirty,' says I. 'Forty,' says she. 'Fifty,' says I. 'Fifty-five,' says she. And there I was stuck. 'Hold on,' says I; 'wait till I see my owners.' 'No, you don't,' says she. 'It's customary,' says I. 'Not anywhere in the world,' says she. 'Then it's customary in the Solomons,' says I. And then she smiles at Burnett as well—you know, one of those fetching smiles, and damme if Burnett doesn't begin slinging out. 'Goin', goin', goin'—last bid—goin', goin' for 55 sovereigns—goin', goin', goin'—to you, Miss—er—what name, please?"

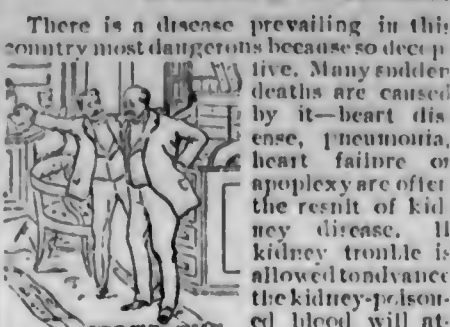

"Joan Lackland," says she with a smile to me, and that's how she bought the Martha."

Sheldon experienced a sudden thrill. The Martha, a liner schooner than the Malakula and, for that matter, the finest in the Solomons—she was just the thing for recruits, and she was right on the spot. Then he realized that for such a craft to sell at auction for 55 meant that there was small chance for saving her.

"But how did it happen?" he asked.

"Weren't they rather quick in selling

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deep-seated. It is the cause of many sudden deaths. It is heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, or any of the many ailments which are the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance, the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root if you do you will be disappointed.

log around by Savo and the upper end of Guntur. But it was no use. 'Bother the charge,' said she. 'You take the horses like a good man, and when I find the Martha I'll return the service some day.'

"And 'bother your orders,' said she to me, Dawson cried. 'I'm your boss now, said she, and you take your orders from me.' Look at the load of ivory nuts, I said. 'Bother them,' said she. 'I'm playing for something bigger than ivory nuts. We'll dump them overboard as soon as we get under way. What I want to know is she your partner or what? That's what I want to know.'

"She is," Sheldon assured him. "Well, who had believed it! I've seen a few unlikely things in this Solomons—rats two feet long, butter flies the commissioner bums with a shotgun ear ornaments that would shame the devil and head hunting devices that make the devil look like an angel. I've seen them and got used to them, but this young woman of yours—"

"Miss Lackland is my partner and part owner of Beranda," Sheldon interrupted. "So she said," the late skipper dashed on. "But she had no papers to show for it. How was I to know? And then she's hired them drunken loafers, three of the worst scoundrels that ever disgraced the Solomons—15 and a month each—what d'ye think of that? And sailed away with them too! 'How! You might give me a drink. The missionary won't mind. I've been on his retentol hooker four days now, and I'm perishing.'

Dr. Westmore nodded in reply to Sheldon's look of inquiry, and Vaburi was dispatched for the whisky and siphons.

"It is evident, Captain Oleson," Sheldon remarked to that refreshed manner, "that Miss Lackland has run away with your boat. Now please give a plain statement of what occurred."

"Right O. Here goes. I'd just come in on the Filiberty. She was on board before I dropped the hook—in that whaleboat of hers with her gang of Tahiti heathens, that big Adamu Adam and the rest. 'Don't drop the anchor, Captain Oleson,' she sang out. 'I want you to get under way for Poonga-Poonga.' I says, 'Excuse me, Miss Lackland, and yells for me 'Le go'."

"And then we hauled it out. I didn't believe her. I didn't think you'd take her on as a partner, and I told her as much and wanted proof. She got mad and mighty, and I told her I was old enough to be her grandfather and that I wouldn't take gammon from a child like her. And then I ordered her off the Filiberty. 'Captain Oleson,' she says, sweet as you please, 'I've a few minutes to spare on you, and I've got some good whisky over on the Emily. Come on along. Besides, I want your advice about this wrecking business. Everybody says you're a crackjack sailorman—that's what she said, 'crackjack.' And I went in her whaleboat, Adamu Adam steering and looking as solemn as a funeral."

"On the way she told me about the Martha and how she'd bought her and was going to float her. She said she'd chartered the Emily and was sailing as soon as I could get the Filiberty under way. I was to sail direct for Poonga-Poonga and if I couldn't take her word that she was your partner she'd get along without me and the Filiberty. And right there's where she fooled me."

"Down in the Emily's cabin was three three-soaks—you know them—Fowler and Curtis and that Britains clump. 'Have a drink,' says she. I thought they looked surprised when she unlocked the whisky locker and sent a nigger for the glasses and water monkey. But she must have tipped them off unbeknownst to me, and they knew just what to do. 'Excuse me,' she says; 'I'm going on deck a minute.' Now, that minute was half an hour. I hadn't had a drink in ten days."

"Well, anyway, at the end of the half hour down she came again and took a good squirt at me. 'That'll do nicely,' I remembered her saying, and with that she took the whisky bottles and drove them overboard through the companionway. 'That's the last,' she said to the three soaks, 'the Martha floats and you're back to Guntur. It'll be a long time between drinks. And then she anchored."

"She looked at me and said not to me, didn't you but to the soaks: 'It's time this worthy man went ashore—me. Worth's mate. 'Fowler, she said. 'Just tell Adamu Adam to turn the whaleboat, and when he's taking Captain Oleson ashore have your boat put me on the Filiberty. The three of you sail with me so I can look your damage. All hands got me over the side, and it seems to me I went to sleep sitting in the stern sheets and watching that Adamu steer. Then I saw the Filiberty's mainmast bobbing and heard the clank of her chain coming in, and I woke up. 'Here, put me on the Filiberty,' I said to Adamu. 'I put you on the beach, said he. 'Miss Lackland says you're pretty good for you. And now I've come to find out whether I'm skipper of the Filiberty or that child of yours with her prating heathen boat's crew."

"Never mind, skipper. You end take a vacation on pay." Sheldon spoke with more assurance than he felt. "It Miss Lackland, who is my partner, has seen fit to take charge of the Filiberty Glibbet, why, it is all right. As you will agree, there was no time to be lost if the Martha was to be got off. It is a bad net, and any considerable sea would knock her bottom out. I settle down here, skipper, and rest up and get the fever out of your bones. When the Filiberty Glibbet comes back you'll take charge again, of course."

DECIDE YOURSELF

The Opportunity Is Here, Backed by Cloverport Testimony.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read Cloverport endorsement. Read the statement of Cloverport citizens. And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it: William Johnson, Cloverport, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills in my case proved to be a very reliable remedy and I have no hesitation in recommending them. For six years my kidneys were disordered. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and when allowed to stand, deposited sediment. My back ached severely, particularly at night, and in the morning I was so lame and sore that I could scarcely get around. Whenever I contracted the slightest cold, it settled in my kidneys and made my suffering more intense. Doan's Kidney Pills have given me great relief from these troubles." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

PROCEEDINGS

To Have Committee Appointed For Mike Tierney. It Is Al- leged That His Estate Is Be- ing Wasted

Proceedings have been instituted in the county court by county attorney James F. Higdon, seeking to have a committee appointed to take charge of the property and business affairs of Michael Tierney, Sr., a wealthy land owner of this county, and whose residence is at Patesville. The proceedings were urged by his two sons, James and Mike, Jr., and his daughter, Mrs. Patrick Quinn. A few years ago the defendant was worth, at least, $20,000, and he still has in his name about 700 acres of land, but it is known that the largest portion of it is heavily mortgaged, and that he has lost practically all of his personal property. Tierney is 75 years of age and he has been growing feeble for several years. He is a member of the firm of Gabbert and Tierney that conducts a general store at Patesville. The wife of Chas. Gabbert is the Gabbert member of the firm, and it is intimated that the old man is influenced by Mr. and Mrs. Gabbert in every transaction, exerting upon him a great influence. In this connection it is further promised that very salty charges will be made and substantiated. Mr. Tierney was a man of much vigor in his early manhood, and for years has been known throughout the county, and to all of the frequenters of the county seat. His name probably appears in the county's records more frequently than that of any other private citizen, chiefly in conveyances of land, or in litigation over it.

It is charged that three years ago a deal was consummated by which 640 acres of Tierney's land was transferred to others for only $700, or slightly more than $1 the acre, and the same land is now being held at $10 the acre, after valuation timber has been taken from it by the purchaser.—Hawesville Clarion.

Thomas Reardon, age 37, married, and father of six children, was found to be of unsound mind by the jury in Judge Chambers' court on last Saturday. The evidence was wholly that of laymen, no doctor having been summoned to attend him, and while it was not conclusive to his sanity, the idea, urged by county attorney, Higdon, that the Hopkinsville Asylum was a good place where such a man might be sent for treatment, prevailed, and the jury's verdict was that he was of unsound mind. He resided near Lyonia.—Hawesville Clarion.

START A CONSOLATION FUND!

Begin today and lay a little cash in bank for money is a great source of consolation when disappointment comes. Old and alone without money is the saddest state in a man's life. You can forget your little troubles and anxieties, to a certain extent, if you have a few cash certificates to think of every month. A PENNY SAVED IS A TEAR DRIED. Put away a dollar every time you have a disappointment and you will be surprised how consoling a dollar is. Try it.
